

Crack German Defenses Near Rome

—NEA Telephoto

Allied troops have driven across the Volturno river north of Naples, breaking through the main German defense line on the road to Rome. The Fifth Army has captured the key transport junction of Aversa and Maddaloni while the Eighth Army, already at Termoli, is pushing ahead so fast it is capturing the hindmost German stragglers.

Court Decrees AP Has Right to Pass on Its Membership

Some Changes in Its By-Laws Necessary in Judges' Opinion

New York, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The right of The Associated Press membership to pass upon the admission of applicants has been upheld in United States District court here which ruled, however, that the by-laws of the news gathering cooperative "in their present form" are in violation of anti-trust laws.

The three-judge court, specifically named to hear the federal government's effort to force the AP to abandon its membership structure and make available the news report to all without restrictions, in a summary judgment yesterday, gave the AP 120 days to make changes in its by-laws to remedy the court's objections to present operations as to membership qualifications.

The court left open to the AP the adoption "of substitutes which will restrict admission" provided "that members in the same 'field' (morning, evening or Sunday in the same city) as the applicant shall not have power to impose, or dispense with, any conditions upon his admission, and that the by-laws shall declare affirmatively that the effect of admission upon the ability of an applicant to compete with members in the same 'field' shall not be taken into consideration in passing upon his application."

Photos Purchase Valid

The court also held that the purchase of Wide World Photos from the New York Times by The Associated Press does not violate the anti-trust laws as charged by the government.

Provided the by-laws are changed as directed, the court also said the exclusive news exchange contract between The Associated Press and the Canadian Press, would not be in violation of law.

It also was the opinion of the court, composed of Judges Learned Hand, Augustus N. Hand and Thomas W. Swan, that if the by-laws were changed as directed, the exclusivity of local news of spontaneous origin which members now furnish the AP as an obligation of membership, would be within the law.

Judge Swan, in a dissenting opinion, held that the motion for summary judgment—decision by the court without trial—should be denied, and he declared:

"Clearly the provisions of AP's by-laws as to admission of members have had no tendency to create a monopoly in news gathering—without the growth of United Press, International News Service and other news gathering agencies. Nor is there proof that they (the by-laws) have stifled competition between member newspapers and other newspaper owners or prospective publishers."

No Comment from AP

In Washington, John Henry Lewry Lewin, first assistant to the head of the department of justice's anti-trust division and originally in charge of the government's suit against the AP, commented on the decision:

"This decision holding the by-laws of The Associated Press violative of the Sherman Act is a victory for freedom of the press in the true sense."

"The press cannot be truly free if its main source of news is an asset of a private club and denied other worthy newspapers simply because they are business

THE WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

One respectfully submits that it would have a salutary effect the world around if we could have a special official declaration that the heaviest punishment compatible with civilized practice will be dealt out to all Japanese who had anything to do with the beheading of the captive allied airmen in the Pacific theater, and that any other instance of such savagery will meet similar retribution.

It would be a great thing for American morale in particular and for allied morale in general, not only military but civilian. It would create both moral and physical fear in the camp of a brutish enemy with whom we still have to come to full grips.

Oh yes, even the throwbacks to barbarism among the Japs experience fear—fear not only for their hides but, strangely enough, for their reputations among respectable peoples. President Roosevelt said that the worst thing he could devise in the way of comment on the beheading was to call the Nipponese uncivilized for perpetrating this act, because nothing gets under the skin of a Japanese more than to be called barbaric.

F. D. R. was very right, as was demonstrated a few hours later when the Japs rushed to the radio and broadcast a denial that they had committed such an atrocity. Their pride had been given a slap in the face by the world's reaction to this horror.

Of course, an official announcement that we shall exact grim vengeance for atrocities would be in effect a reiteration of our state

Nation's Railroads Fast Approaching Limit of Facilities, Shippers Learn

Chicago, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The nation's railroads will meet the peak of transportation demands this fall, handling a greatly increased traffic in freight, but not without difficulty, the Midwest Shippers Advisory board was told today.

L. M. Betts, manager of the car service division of the Association of American Railroads, asserted that the roads "are fast approaching the practical limitations of their transportation facilities even when used to the utmost capacity."

Freight traffic has increased 21 per cent over 1942, Betts said in an address prepared for delivery to the shippers, but the railroads' net serviceable car supply and net serviceable locomotive supply have advanced only .6 per cent

German Strength is Spread Dangerously Thin in Yugoslavia

Partisans Ready to Attack from All Sides When Chance Comes

At a Partisan Brigade Headquarters in Yugoslavia, Oct. 2.—(Delayed)—(AP)—German strength is spread dangerously thin along the seagirt, mountainous "under belly" of Yugoslavia, and the nazis know it.

More fiction than truth has been printed in the outside world about military events in Dalmatia. When 12 Italian divisions disintegrated as a fighting force on Sept. 9, claims that the Partisans controlled all the coast were fantastic, but the fact remains that two German divisions, "Der Teufel" and "Der Eugen," had their hands more than full in attempting to restore the situation.

Here is the latest information, made available to me by the commander of this Partisan brigade headquarters:

Jap Ferry Sunk by Yank Sub; 544 Lost

(By The Associated Press)

An allied submarine, slipping boldly into the waters off Japan's west coast, sank a Japanese steamer Tuesday in an attack which took the lives of more than 500 persons, Tokyo broadcast declared today. There is little doubt that the submarine was American.

The steamer, which plied between Shimonezaki on the principal Japanese island of Honshu and Fusan, Korea, was on its regular ferry run, according to a Domei news agency broadcast quoting a railways ministry announcement.

Despite strenuous efforts by warships and naval planes to rescue the passengers and crew, Tokyo said, only 72 of the 616 persons aboard had been reported saved up to the time of the announcement today. Rough seas and communication trouble were said to have hampered the rescue work.

In reporting the receipt of the Tokyo broadcast, the office of War Information said that to penetrate those waters "an allied submarine would have to dare risks almost, if not as great, as those that confronted the U. S. submarine that made its way into Tokyo harbor."

He declared that the roads "are getting just about the maximum possible efficiency out of their cars", and average miles per car a day for the last year were 47.7 and now are more than 50, a record high.

"There is a definite need for more cars, more locomotives and more men", Betts said. "Otherwise, no substantial increase over present traffic can be handled."

Betts said new car orders over the last year ranged from 20,000 to 35,000 and more would have been placed had there been better prospects of delivery. The roads, he said, are prepared to order immediately 20,000 in addition to the 30,000 now on order with the approval of the War Production Board.

Fifth Army Batters Close to Main Nazi Positions in Italy

British Destroyers in Foray of 200 Miles Into Adriatic

By RICHARD McMURRAY Associated Press War Editor

The American Fifth Army was battering forward close to the main German defenses in southern Italy along the Volturno river today and were declared by radio France of Algiers to be only three miles from Capua, a principal bastion of the road to Rome.

The German communiqué said "at the Volturno river, repeated enemy infantry and tank attacks were repulsed, mostly in counter-thrusts". Dispatches from allied headquarters said enemy defenses on the north bank were intact.

Instead of crossing the river as reported yesterday, the Fifth Army forced a tributary of the Volturno, the Calore which flows into the Volturno 15 miles west of Benevento.

British destroyers pushed more than 200 miles into the Adriatic to support Gen. Montgomery's reinforced Eighth Army. The sleek greyhounds of the sea bombarded the railway and military targets northwest of Termoli "to dislocate enemy attacks in that area", the allied communiqué said. A German attack with infantry and tanks was repulsed along the Adriatic coast.

Nazis Capture Coo

In the Dodecanese islands guarding entry to the Aegean sea, the Germans captured the town of Coo on the island of that name and several landing strips. The Middle East command, acknowledging these further reverses, insisted that resistance was continuing.

American heavy bombers spanned the length of the Italian boot to attack the railway yards of Venice at Mestre, five miles to the northwest.

German defenses had congealed appreciably in Italy and both allied armies were engaged in slugging matches necessary to reduce enemy strength.

Other war developments included:

Wake Island Bombed

Pacific—A U. S. task force bombarded and bombed Wake island. The Australians advanced within 50 miles of Madang, New Guinea. Japanese defenses were bombed widely in the arc north of Australia. Tojo said the allied offensive had "gained in intensity."

India—Lord Louis Mountbatten

arrived in New Delhi to set up his command for southeast Asia and organize a drive to oust the Japanese from Burma.

Russia—The Red army reported

"no important changes." The Germans asserted a new drive was developing around Leningrad. Behind the mud bogs of the eastern Dnieper banks and White Russia, the Red army was strengthening and repairing communications, consolidating its 90,000 square miles of conquered "scorched earth," and preparing for the winter.

Yugoslavia—Two German divisions were spread thin along the Adriatic coast of Yugoslavia. Daniel de Luce of the Associated Press reported from the headquarters of the partisan army of General Tito.

PACIFIC CAMPAIGN

Japanese defenses on stolen Wake island appeared overwhelmed today after a heavy naval bombardment and carrier plane bombing Tuesday of the tiny Pacific speck which the Nipponese converted into a strong air base.

The island, on which a gallant band of Marines held out against violent attack until Dec. 22, 1941, 1,500 miles northeast of Guam and 1,300 miles from the great Japanese naval base of Truk north of the Solomons and New Guinea where Gen. Douglas MacArthur was painfully amputating bases from the Japanese octopus.

The navy withheld details until the task force returns.

The blow at Wake followed rather closely four apparently related moves in the central Pacific:

1. A carrier plane bombardment of Marcus island, between Wake and Japan, on August 30.

2. A carrier bombing of Tarawa and other principal bases of the Gilbert islands on Sept. 18 and 19.

3. The seizure of Nanumea, the extreme northern island of the Ellice archipelago, by Marines on Sept. 4.

Schnackenberg May Be Green's Running Mate

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Elmer J. Schnackenberg of Chicago, speaker of the Illinois House of representatives during the last two sessions, is being eyed by GOP state-makers as a possible candidate for the party's nomination as lieutenant governor, state Republican leaders who declined to be quoted by name said today.

Under such a setup the present lieutenant governor, Hugh W. Cross of Jerseyville, would seek the U. S. senatorial nomination—a move long predicted by his friends—but contradictory to recent forecasts by Capitol observers that Cross will run again for his present post on a ticket headed by Governor Green.

Uncertainty of the Schnackenberg candidacy also is emphasized by the fact that with Governor Green seeking re-election it would violate a political axiom by drawing candidates for both governor and lieutenant governor from Chicago.

Lyons Most-Talked

The same principle would be violated should Schnackenberg get the party's nod as candidate for the U. S. senate. The present Republican senator, Wayland C. Brooks, also hails from Chicago. His term expires in 1949.

Richard J. Lyons of Libertyville, a rough and ready orator during five terms in the Illinois house, continues as the most-discussed Republican possibility for the senatorial nomination. Lyons was defeated in 1938 in his senate race against Senator Scott W. Lucas, Democrat, of Havana.

Lyons' withdrawal, however, apparently would clear the way for Cross to run for the senate and Schnackenberg for lieutenant governor.

Lyons now is deputy director of the state department of revenue. He was transferred last spring from the state tax commission when that body was absorbed by the newly-created revenue department.

Schnackenberg announced last spring he would not seek re-election as speaker or as a member of the house, where he served continuously since 1922. He first was elected in 1912.

$3,575 Boar is Bought for Farm Near Ashton

The record price in many years for a boar, $3,575, was paid recently by Roy Fruehauff, motor truck manufacturer, to be added to the great herd of Hampshire hogs on a farm four miles north of Ashton, which is more familiarly known as the old Clint Myers farm. The boar, which is registered as Perfect I Am, No. 2, was sired by Roll Your Own and out of a daughter of Stam Roller. He brought $75 more than Cesar Farms paid for his sire earlier this year. Gayoso Farms, Horn Lake, Mich., paid the next top price of $3,000 for No. 7 by Roll Your Own and out of a sow by No. Knock.

The Fruehauff Hampshire farm north of Ashton is owned by Babson Bros., and is under the management of Charles Gorrill, who it is reported will go to Ottawa, Kas., next spring to take over the management of several of the Fruehauff stock farms.

Robert Reed, Aged 17, Missing; Blood Stained Cap Found

Had Gone to Investigate Car Parked Near His Father's Farm Home

The mysterious disappearance of 17-year-old Robert Reed, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Reed, who reside on the South Main road near the Ogle-Winnebaggo county line north of Byron and near Rock river, is today being investigated by Sheriff William Hungerford and deputies from the Ogle county sheriff's office. Reed yesterday reported the disappearance of his son from the farm home Tuesday night about 9:30 o'clock when he left the house with his flash light and bicycle to investigate a parked car a short distance from the house.

Wednesday morning when the parents learned that their son had not returned home, a search was instituted and his bicycle was found lying on the ground and his cap, which bore two bloodstains, was found along the roadside, near where the car he was believed to have investigated had been parked the night before. The sheriff's office at Ogle was notified by the boy's father and Sheriff Hungerford and deputies went to the scene and spent yesterday making an investigation, which was resumed today, but found no trace of the youth.

Reed was reported to have told Sheriff Hungerford and deputies that the family had retired Tuesday night when Robert came into the house with the keys to his father's automobile, placed on a dresser in his parents' bedroom, and stated that he had locked the gasoline tank in the barn yard to prevent theft.

Warned by Father

The youth then informed his parents he was going to investigate a car which was parked across the road, and taking his flashlight, left the house after his father had warned him to take a club for self protection. The father informed Sheriff Hungerford that because of thefts of cattle and other articles from the farm the boy had been investigating

'Liberty' Promised Filipinos by Japs

New York, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The Tokyo radio announced today that the Philippines would become an "independent" country within the Japanese "co-prosperity sphere" Oct. 14 and Berlin said Tagalog is the official language of the new state.

English has been the official language in the islands since 1913.

The Berlin broadcast said a revolutionary marching song composed by Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo during his insurrection against the United States at the close of last century had been chosen for the Philippine national anthem and translated into Tagalog, one of many dialects spoken there.

The Tokyo broadcast, recorded by U. S. government monitors, said the date for conferring "freedom" on the Philippines had been set after conferences in Tokyo between Japanese officials and Filipino "president-elect" Jose Laurel.

Tokyo's announcement concerning "freedom" for the Philippines effective Oct. 14 followed by only a few hours President Roosevelt's special message to the congress in Washington proposing a proclamation of independence for the islands as soon as feasible. Roosevelt stated the Filipinos had, by their heroism and loyalty, won the right to "complete freedom and nationhood."

Good, Bad or Indifferent, All Hogs Look Alike to Packing Co. Buyers

Chicago, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Good, bad or indifferent, all hogs look alike to packing company buyers today—they are all worth $14.75 a hundred pounds, and the buyer who gets to the market first has the best chance of obtaining somewhere the number he would like to get.

Since OPA ceilings went into effect Monday, an unparalleled situation has developed in trading. The "ceiling" has also become the "floor". Light hogs and heavy sows, which usually sell at a discount, now bring the same price as choice "fancy butchers". Hagglers over prices, a traditional characteristic of the mar-

GLENN HUSBAND

Former soldier from Sumner, Ia., one of two truck drivers who were burned to death in the crash of their vehicles following a collision on U. S. route 30 near the entrance to the Green River ordnance plant early Wednesday morning.

Bodies of Victims of Truck Collision to Homes for Rites

Verdicts of accidental death were returned at the coroner's inquests into the deaths of Harland Spenser and Glenn Husband, who were cremated following a head-on crash of two trucks at the entrance to the Green River ordnance plant at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday morning. The jury convened at the Preston funeral home yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock and several witnesses testified at the investigation, which was conducted by Coroner Frank Nangle of Paw Paw. After the inquest the charred bodies were sent to their respective homes, that of Glenn Husband being taken to Sumner, Iowa, and Spenser's remains to Hexton, Neb.

Mrs. Linda Kroblin, owner of the Sumner, Iowa, truck which was driven by Husband, and her son arrived in Dixon about noon yesterday and attended the inquest yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Kroblin stated that Husband, who was the best driver of her fleet of 14 trucks, carried about $800 in his possession at the time of the crash. Husband, she stated, was 39 years of age and was inducted into the army last October, having been honorably discharged from service last January, when he again entered her employ. He had been making an average of about three trips weekly between Sumner and Chicago, she stated, and on practically every trip, both going and coming, had driven over route U. S. 30 on which the tragic accident occurred at the early hour Wednesday morning.

He had been scheduled to leave

Casualties

Washington, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Secretary Stimson reported today that Army casualties during the four weeks since bitterly-contested landings began at Salerno, Italy, total, 8,307, of whom only 511 now are listed as killed in action.

The war secretary told his press conference that 5,428 American soldiers have been wounded in the campaign on the Italian mainland, and 2,368 are missing.

"I understand," Stimson said, "that this is somewhat greater than the total casualties suffered by the British components of the 5th army."

At the time of the initial landings in the Bay of Salerno, the secretary said, the 5th army under Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark was composed almost equally of American and British troops, but subsequent reinforcements have been largely American.

Senate Allowances for Dependents of War Personnel Cut

House Committee Acts on Bill Approved by Senate Yesterday

Washington, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The house military committee voted today to pare down the liberal allowances for dependent children of enlisted servicemen which the senate approved yesterday in refusing to halt the draft of pre-war fathers.

Writing a new formula for such payments, the committee approved increases of $13 monthly over the present scale to the first dependent child, a $10 boost for the second child, and an increase of $5 for all additional children.

The committee left unchanged the present monthly payment of $50 to a wife but extended the scope of the present law to permit dependents of all seven grades of enlisted men to obtain payments.

The figures recommended by the committee for house action next week were $50 for a wife, $75 for a wife and one child, $95 for a wife and two children, $110 for a wife and three children, and an extra $15 for any additional children under 18.

The senate, taking the initiative in seeking to ease the financial burdens of soldiers' families, approved monthly allotments of $50 for a wife, plus $30 for the first child and $20 for each additional child.

Existing law provides $50 for the wife, $62 for a wife and one child, and $10 extra for each additional child.

Husbands Eligible

The house committee also made eligible for aid dependent husbands of women in the service, provided they prove actual dependency.

It authorized enlisted men of the three higher groups not now covered by the law to take advantage of the proposed new act or to waive their rights and retain present allowances for subsistence and quarters. In some cases, these allowances are higher than those provided for in the committee bill; in others they are lower.

Chairman May (D-Ky) estimated the bill would add $650,000,000 yearly to the cost of the allotment and allowance law, which during the last 15 months cost the government an estimated $1,200,000,000 exclusive of contributions from service men.

The committee made no changes in the current deductions from service men's checks, leaving the amount at $22 monthly for men with primary dependents, such as wives and children. This $22 is included in the monthly aggregate payments provided in the bill. It also left unchanged a senate-approved provision upping payments to parents, brothers and sisters dependent on a service man for their chief support, and trimming allowances for such dependents receiving only "substantial" support from a service man.

Consideration Next Week

Majority leader McCormack of Massachusetts announced to the house the bill would be considered next week.

The senate measure was passed after rejection, 48 to 26, of a final proposal by Senator Wheeler to prohibit further father drafting. In its final form the bill sent to the house would:

1. Deny federal employment to able-bodied, draft-age non-fathers whose "indispensability" can not be certified to congress within 30 days after the bill's enactment.

2. Require evidence of the indispensability of workers in war plants be submitted to draft boards for all occupational deferments of non-fathers of draft age.

Two Volumes of Old Newspapers Added to U. of Ill. Collection

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Two volumes of Illinois newspapers of the middle nineteenth century, which add materially to the knowledge of history of central Illinois journalism for the period, have been placed in the C. A. Kiler collection in the University of Illinois school of journalism, the school announced today.

The volumes were given to Kiler by Mrs. Florence A. Raynor of Champaign, who discovered them among the effects of the late Dr. J. W. Scroggs, founder of the Champaign Gazette.

One volume is that of the Ford County Journal of Paxton for 1859-60, which was printed in the Gazette office by Dr. Scroggs and W. C. Stoddard. The newspaper was active in support of Abraham Lincoln for the presidency in 1860, and an editorial in one issue claims that the Journal was the first newspaper to suggest Lincoln as a candidate for president.

The second volume is that of the Illinois State Journal of Springfield for 1869 and contains a complete account of legislative proceedings in the state capital that year.

Report Berlin Makes Protest to Turkey

Ankara, Oct. 6.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Unofficial reports in Ankara today said the German government had delivered a formal protest to the Turkish foreign office accusing the Turks of failing to show complete neutrality during the allied attack on the Dodecanese and other Aegean islands.

The Germans complained, it was said, that Turkish anti-aircraft guns failed to shoot at transport planes using the coast as a cover and that British military personnel left for the islands in small boats from the Turkish shores.

Liberalization of Episcopal's Canons Is Being Debated

Cleveland, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Liberalization of Protestant Episcopal church canons governing remarriage of divorced persons was called for debate by clergy and laymen today, the fourth major controversial issue in two days to face the church's 54th triennial general convention.

Report of a joint commission of clergy, laity and bishops already has been presented to the House of Deputies recommending liberalization of the present canon which condones remarriage only for innocent persons in divorce actions based on adultery.

Proposed revision of the canon would permit remarriage of divorced persons at the discretion of the diocesan bishop, "with the advice and counsel" of a parish presbyter, an attorney and a psychiatrist.

Two Issues Settled

Two heatedly debated issues were settled in the House of Deputies yesterday, in decisions which approved raising the presiding bishop's retirement age from 68 to 70, effective immediately, and adopted a postwar church program based on international collaboration, equality for all nations and races and economic betterment through cooperation of government and private enterprise. The present presiding bishop is the Rt. Henry St. George Tucker of Richmond, Va., now 69.

Earlier the deputies approved—without anticipated debate—resolutions continuing negotiations toward eventual organized unity with the Presbyterian church.

The House of Bishops also adopted a motion making the retirement age of 72 years applicable to present bishops. Three members of the house are expected to be affected by the action, which requires confirmation by the House of Deputies.

They are the Rt. Rev. William T. Manning of New York, 77; the Rt. Rev. John C. White of Springfield, Ill., 76, and the Rt. Rev. James De Wolf Perry of Providence, R. I., 72 last Sunday.

Stir Over $50 Charge to Hear Willkie Talk Is Apparently Ended

St. Louis, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The stir over a $50 charge for reserved boxes at Wendell L. Willkie's scheduled speech here apparently was ended today with the checks being returned to the purchasers.

Willkie wired the Republican committee he would be willing to foot the bill himself for renting the opera house in Kiel Auditorium, stating "I am anxious that all citizens who wish to attend may do so without charge of any kind."

Party leaders had been asked by the Republican state committee to buy the tickets to help finance the meeting and make up a party deficit.

Barak T. Mattingly, national committeeman, said the speech Oct. 15 will cost the party about $1,000 and that the matter of financing will be discussed later with Willkie's representative. He added, however, that the committee expects to sell choice seats at subsequent party rallies as a means to wipe out the deficit.

DUCE MOVES "CAPITAL"

(By The Associated Press)

Strongly indicating that Germany has little hope of holding Rome, the Berlin radio said today that the seat of Benito Mussolini's new government would be moved "to northern Italy" this week end. Axis diplomats have been informed of the transfer and have been advised to follow, said the broadcast.

A Thought for Today

Many that are first shall be last; and the last shall be first.—Matthew 19:30.

O be very sure

That no man will learn anything at all, Unless he first will learn humility.

—Owen Meredith.

Same Purpose, Different Reasons

Of late there has been a discovery that nothing is to be gained in the field of international relations by pretending that things are not what they actually are. Pretense always clouds the understanding, and a man who deceives even himself weaves a tangled web.

Tons of white paper have been used to express the hope that Russia's dictator, Josef Stalin, will attend a hoped-for conference with Roosevelt and Churchill and that they will come to some common agreement about the future. In other words, there is hope that the "United Nations" will become actually united.

Now the fact is that they are united in the purpose of defeating Hitler, but they are not united in the purpose of defeating the axis as a whole, because the Russians have not declared war against Japan which is a very strong part of the axis. Even the axis is not what it is cracked up to be, because originally, Hitler, Hirohito and Mussolini took the attitude of the three famous musketeers—all for one and one for all. But Hirohito has not attacked Russia.

There is a chance here for a brilliant comparison. If Hirohito were honestly idealistic (from the axis point of idealism) he would jump onto the Russians instantly, being convinced that the justice of his cause would produce ultimate victory. Or is Stalin were willing to be strongly idealistic from the United Nations point of view, he would lend us some air bases from which to bomb Tokyo. The comparison is this: Britain totally unprepared to fight Germany, nevertheless declared war when the Germans attacked Poland. England's obligation to fight in defense of Poland was not greater than Russia's obligation, as one of the United Nations, to help us in the Pacific. Nor was England's obligation greater than Japan's axis obligation to fight Russia so as to help Germany.

But the English did attack. In succeeding days they faced what seemed certain defeat, and weaker people might have given up, but they seem never to have thought of quitting. If Hitler hadn't been so dull he would have followed up the stroke that led to Dunkerque; but even so, can you picture the English people surrendering abjectly?

The British were protecting their empire and their home isles. The attack on Germany was an indirect approach to that defense. Neighbor Adolf had to be kept within bounds. Nothing had been said at that time—when Germany invaded Poland—about the four freedoms, the United Nations or Mr. Wallace's quart of milk. The British had a reason for fighting before the Atlantic charter was so mis-named.

Russia is fighting to protect Russia. Russia had a cause for fighting even if the Atlantic charter, the four freedoms, the nine freedoms, the quart of milk or the world police force were cooked up.

Americans were making loud representations and chanting ringing ideals long before Pearl Harbor. But there ideals were not enough to make us go to war. It took the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor to make us wheel out the guns. In other words, Britain, Russia and the United States primarily are fighting in defense. The ideals are excellent insofar as they are practical, but they must not be permitted to obscure the war, nor must we let them carry us to the point where we think the Reds have any quart-of-milk foolishness in their makeup.

Russia is admirably situated, from a diplomatic standpoint. Adolf would be mighty glad to give Russia all he has conquered in the east if the Reds would only give him an opportunity to turn his back and run—and the Reds know it. If Stalin would only say the word, Hitler could turn all his war machinery to guard against invasion from the west or south, and in that case we would be in for a very long war.

The upshot is that the coming conference with Stalin, if it is held, will result in some very practical conversation. The idealists will have the clouds jerked away from under them. We shall begin to look at things as they are instead of the way they ought to be if people were perfect.

And it might be a very good thing if we do.

Keeping the Faith

Once more, and increasingly day by day, the quasi-political strategy followed by the Allies in the Mediterranean is paying dividends in American and English lives. Some of the more impatient, who want no trick with expediency, insist upon denouncing our willingness to deal with Darian in North Africa and with Badoglio in Italy. Their arguments will carry decreasing weight as the relatives and friends of fighting men discover the very practical results that have been obtained from the policy we are following.

We took Marshal Badoglio at his face value as a non-fascist and, at this time at least, an anti-fascist. He could not deliver Italy to us on a silver platter because the nazis had too many troops present. But he appears to be doing everything in his power to make good on his commitments to us.

Not only have the Italians stopped fighting against us, but to a greater extent than we had the right to expect they are trying to fight on our side. In continental Italy they are just about as powerless to help us as they had been to harm us; but against the nazis, as previously against us, they do possess a considerable nuisance value.

In Sardinia, where they were not outnumbered, they took the initiative and drove the Germans out, giving us, without the expenditure of a single American or English life, the use of several valuable airfields and some very fair harbors.

If the die-hard haters had their way Italy would still have been obliged to surrender unconditionally, but we certainly would not have had the active military collaboration that we now are receiving.

About Badoglio, even more than Darian, we must keep in mind that nationalism is very deeply entrenched in Europe, and we must remember that military men are bred from adolescence in the tradition of obedience to their superiors.

When Mussolini imposed his will upon a weak king, Badoglio went along. There is no evidence that he ever liked the situation. There is much evidence that he did not. But he was loyal to his country and his king.

Now that circumstances have given him opportunity to work and fight against fascism, he is keeping the faith.

Surplus Income

The Northwestern National Life Insurance Company has made a survey to determine how war wage increases are being spent, and comes up with the finding: Largely on women.

The big increases in spending, says the company, show up in quantity and quality of women's and misses' garments, in jewelry, in furs, in admissions to amusements, in playing cards, in cigarettes. Some of these are exclusively for women; others, the company says, like amusements and playing cards and even cigarettes, are in considerable part for women.

Meanwhile, a roving reporter finds the jeweler in Eagle Grove, Ia., population 4,000, selling two dozen $50 and $75 watches by noon of the day they arrived; the music store at Ames sold out of pianos, some priced up to $565.

There is no necessary conflict between the two reports.

other reason for our staying together."

She ripped the last of the insignia from the tunic. To remove the buttons was but the work of a moment.

Imhof took the tunic and started rubbing soot into the cloth. Pat insisted on helping and between them the tunic was finished in short order.

"I'll take these," said Imhof, gathering up insignia and buttons, "and bury them outside while you give your trousers a going over. Call when you're finished."

OUTSIDE, Imhof moved away a short distance, buried buttons and insignia and sat down to consider.

Here he was with the girl on his hands. Perhaps he had been foolish, but there it was. She was in Germany on his account and he felt responsible for getting her out. But he had to get Enzell's stuff also, without delay. That was the trouble. He couldn't just rush Pat to the Swiss frontier and have Kiefer or Frohlich smuggle her across. This was the simplest, safest and sanest course, but there just was not time.

It came down to leaving her somewhere near at hand while he went and got Enzell's stuff. Then he would pick her up on his way out.

But if he didn't come back to pick her up, if the Gestapo got him? Well, he was coming back. But if—something insisted.

In that case, she'd have to try and reach the frontier on her own, as she had intended originally. She'd be where she was when they forced-landed. Only better off, with money at least. And he'd have done all he could for her.

Unless—the unpleasant something insisted—unless the Gestapo link her up with you, in which case you will have made her exchange internment for the tender mercies of Himmler's men, perhaps even for execution as a spy.

The shock of this realization brought Imhof to his feet. Why hadn't he seen this before he interfered? He had been a blind fool to meddle.

News Behind THE NEWS

(Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc., Reproduction in Whole or in Part Strictly Prohibited)

Washington—The congressional reception for the treasury tax program was expected to be discouraging—but not as discouraging as it turned out to be.

Economic Stabilizer Vinson was scheduled to appear next day in support of Treasury Secretary Morgenthau. When he did not, excuses were made that he was not fully prepared.

What he meant was that he was not prepared to meet the sour rejection Morgenthau had encountered. The administration obviously needed more time to regain its countenance.

The congressional committee attitude is not hard to explain. The Morgenthau plan seemed to lack a convincing ring of either sense or security. Indeed, it appeared to have only a feeble political justification.

Morgenthau condemned himself with his own argument. The proposition he offered was simply this:

The people have $25,000,000,000 of "excess spending money." This causes a dangerous threat of inflation. We need to tax it into the treasury. Then, almost in the next breath, he said "four-fifths of this dangerous excess is in the hands of people earning less than $5,000 a year" (that is, they earn four-fifths of the current national war income).

Two breaths later, he proposed tax increases not so large on this class as on all other tax sources. Indeed, his plan would have eliminated some of the smallest taxpayers entirely. In short, he argued for one thing and then proposed another.

Any commentator must be driven to the conclusion that the plan was proposed largely for political purposes. The treasury knew well that people do not understand and analyze such matters thoroughly, but figure only how the taxes might hit them personally.

Thus this scheme had the benefit of a popular appeal, even though this appeal wore thin in the face of the prospect that congress would not enact it, as the treasury well knew when the proposal was submitted.

Even so, as previously outlined in this spot, the income tax burden is already so heavy on all groups as to furnish a proper excuse for the rejection of the plan, and it was the only one which the house committeemen offered in public.

This left the tax question in even more of an impenetrable quandary than had been expected. What to do?

Congressional tax-makers no doubt will develop some idea of their own, but there is hardly a chance that any strong group in congress will pick up Morgenthau's facts and go after those whom he says are making four-fifths of the income.

In truth, the great bulk of wartime increases is going to what was formerly the lowest income groups. The incomes that have doubled and trebled are those of certain war workers, the lowest skilled and unskilled labor, the carpenter, etc., and special groups of labor.

There is one way, only one, by which these swollen war incomes could be trapped. The people who have the money are spending it. A sales tax would certainly reach them.

It is not a tax on a class or a group, however, but on everyone. It would also hit to some extent those whose incomes have not been increased much.

As related in this spot so often, nearly everyone in politics is afraid of the idea. Only two committeemen spoke out for it at the Morgenthau session. There will be more but not enough to cause its adoption.

As everyone is reluctant to reach for the money where it is, and as the taxes on other sources of revenue are already about as high as they can go (Morgenthau concedes this), the possibility of any tax legislation grows increasingly remote.

TO ENTER STASSEN

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 7—(AP)—Harold E. Stassen, former governor of Minnesota, and now a lieutenant commander in the Navy, will be entered in the Nebraska presidential preference primary on the Republican ticket next year, John Quinn, who said he will handle the campaign for Stassen in this state, announced today.

Quinn disclosed plans for entering Stassen on the preference primary ballot, in announcing his resignation today as deputy secretary of state.

MOLINER DECORATED

San Diego, Calif., Oct. 7—(AP)—Commander Lamar P. Carver, USN, of Moline, Ill., has been decorated with the Navy Cross, the Navy department announced. He was cited for an accurate attack on submarines in Casablanca harbor, having personally made one of two direct hits which resulted in the destruction of two submarines.

Deaths

PATRICK A. NASH

Chicago, Oct. 7—(AP)—Patrick A. Nash, Democratic leader in Chicago and Illinois for many years and co-chief of the nationally known and powerful Kelly-Nash political organization, died last night of pneumonia after an illness of four days.

The 80-year-old party chief—who did not object to being called a political boss—for the last decade shared leadership of Chicago Democrats with Mayor Edward J. Kelly.

Widely known as the "Kelly-Nash machine", the organization not only held political control of the rank and file of the city's Democrats, but was a formidable factor in state and national elections. The huge vote it polled in the nation's second largest city frequently meant the difference between victory and defeat for Democratic candidates.

Nash, a native of Chicago who began his political career 60 years ago and who held many key positions in the party's city and state organizations, 10 years ago rejected the post of mayor of Chicago in favor of Kelly. At that time, after the death of the party chief and mayor, Anton J. Cermak, Nash was chairman of the Cook county Democratic committee and successor to Cermak as the party's national committeeman for Illinois. Three years ago he retired from the national post—in favor of Kelly—but he remained an active party leader up to his death.

Although the majority of Democratic candidates for office in Chicago, with Kelly-Nash support, was successful, the organization has met some reversals in the 10 years of Kelly-Nash leadership. The most outstanding setback was in 1936 when they lost a battle to prevent Governor Henry Horner's renomination. Again in 1938 they lost in seeking to forestall the senatorial nomination of Scott Lucas. But, in the wake of these intra-party reverses, they reunited with their factional foes and bested their Republican opponents.

Nash, who was in the contracting business, is survived by his widow and two sons. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

HENDERSON PREDICTS

New York, Oct. 7—(AP)—Leon Henderson, former head of the Office of Price Administration, says that President Roosevelt will be re-elected for a fourth term in 1944 along with a Republican house and a Democratic senate. He made his prediction last night in answer to a question put to him after he finished speaking at New York University's school of education.

From where I sit...

by Joe Marsh

Every time Lem Martin hears about another Jap battleship being sunk—or another Nazi city being blasted—Lem grins his teeth, and digs into his pocket for more War Bond money.

"With our soldiers over there don't better 'n' better at their scorin'," Lem says grimly, "we can do the same at home."

It's easy to think that if the war is going well, we can afford to let down just a little instead of realizing that the bigger our offensive gets the more our boys are going to need equipment and munitions.

From where I sit, here's the way it is... It's up to everyone of us to put not only our spare money into War Bonds, but to figure out new ways of saving so that we'll have still more money to invest in Victory.

As Lem says: "We asked for plenty of action—and we're sure getting it. All over the world our men have got them Axis fellas on the run. Let's Back the Attack with War Bonds."

THE STORY: When Capt. Raymond Imhof, Q-74, U. S. Army intelligence, discovers that the RAF pilot with whom he has been forced down in enemy territory is a girl, Pat Danforth tells how she took her brother's place when a last-minute emergency prevented his going. Imhof has been assigned to follow the trail of Enzell, Q-49, leading to certain important information Enzell has been unable to bring out of Germany.

FORMATION FOR TWO

CHAPTER X

IMHOF grinned. "Listen, Pat," he continued seriously. "I can't begin to tell you how much I appreciate your taking your brother's place. It was great of you. If you hadn't, there'd have been no flight. And the swell job you turned in!"

"A forced landing wasn't part of the plan, Captain Imhof," said Pat. "Ray—to you!" Imhof countered. "And we should worry about that now." He picked up the tunic and began trying to get the insignia off.

Pat laid a hand on his and stopped him.

"I'll attend to that afterwards," she said with quiet determination. Imhof did not pretend to misunderstand.

"You're not peeling off, Pat," he replied. "The formation continues."

"I simply am not going to gum things up for you." The girl's voice was firm.

"You're not going to make things harder for me, are you?" Imhof asked in a steady tone.

"I certainly am not. That's why you're going to do your job without me on your hands."

"On the contrary, that's why your peeling off now is definitely out. Stop thinking about yourself for a minute and think of me instead."

Imhof knew this was unfair, but he hoped it might be effective. It was. Patricia Danforth gasped. Imhof went on. "I wouldn't let you peel off down by the river. Characters and situations are fictitious. Any resemblance to actual persons or happenings is coincidental."

Remember? And I didn't know you were a girl then, if it's any consolation to you."

Pat considered. After all, she need not object to Imhof's keeping her with him as long as he would have kept Rick.

"Ditto when I told you to get your clothes off here," Imhof pursued. "Which reminds me!"

He glanced at her shrewdly and decided to go ahead—"we'd better be getting to work on this tunic. Can you get the insignia off?" He held the garment out to her.

Pat hesitated, looking at him levelly, then took the tunic.

SHE worked a while in silence, then paused to favor Imhof with a glance compounded of keenness and humor.

"I've a feeling, Ray Imhof, that you've put something over on me."

"Certainly I've put something over on you," he countered. "I've sold you the sensible course, the right thing to do. We came in formation and we continue in formation."

Patricia Danforth did not commit herself.

"And after we get clothes in Coblenz?" she asked.

"We're refugees fleeing from Coblenz, and we make our way to Boppard, a little way up the Rhine. After that," Imhof smiled quizzically, "I don't know—never did."

"What do you mean?" Pat demanded curiously.

"It all depends on a letter at the Boppard P. O.," Imhof answered. He briefly outlined the situation with regard to the Enzell letter. Pat listened intently, her eyes gleaming.

"So if the thing's a sell," Imhof ended, "we may be heading for the frontier in a very few days."

Another reason, incidentally, for our staying together."

"Or the claimant of the letter may be nabbed at Boppard post office," Pat supplemented. "An-

Big Mort Cooper's Refrigerated Job on Mound Feature

He and Brother Walker With Help of Mates, "Win for Dad"

By SID FEDER
New York, Oct. 7.—(AP)—All even at one game apiece, the New York Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals today were not only right back where they started from as a result of Mort Cooper's refrigerated job of pitching his way out of a pot-full of boiling water, but also had a running start on a carbon copy of the world series history boom.

As they went into their third game today—the last of the set in New York—and the thousands began gathering again in the huge stadium, all hands admitted it will be many a day before they forget the mastery of Mort, burdened with grief of his father, shaky and near tears, hanging on for a 4-3 decision in yesterday's second game.

And along with the way the big right-hander came off the ropes punching each time the Yanks had him softened up, the boys and girls will remember the job Mort's catcher-brother, Walker, did, setting his jaw and grimly sticking it out behind the plate, although you knew the heart of neither of the Missouri farm boys was within a thousand miles.

Point to Last Series
With the Cards' win in the book from that second game, squaring the show for the Yanks' opener decision on Tuesday, the National League cheering section perked up and pointed out that up to now this 1943 set couldn't be any more like the '42 get-together if they were cut off the same rib roast. A year ago, the Yanks took the opener and the Cards came charging back to grab the second game—by 4-3, incidentally—and then galloped through the next three to pick up all marbles.

Manager Billy Southworth sent his gangling rookie sinker-ball southpaw, Alpha Brazle, to the firing line.

Borowy Finished "Hot"
Joe McCarthy selected just about the "hottest" hurler in the American League in the last few weeks of the regular season. This was willowy Hank Borowy, a right-hander and winner of his last seven starts.

Hank knows by now that serving boom boom balls to even the weakest-walloping of the St. Louis batsmen is dangerous. They know what to do in such situations. Ernie (Tiny) Bonham made this mistake a couple of times yesterday. He did it to Slaty Marion, who in five months of the 1943 season, hit a grand total of but one homer. Ray Sanders also got to Bonham for a homer.

Except for these two lapses, Bonham even outpitched Cooper. All told, he gave up only seven hits and fanned nine, whiffing the side in order in the sixth, the first time this had been done in a series in ten years.

SERIES NOTES

By Ted Meier
New York, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Big Mort Cooper is getting the world series headlines today and rightly so, but the tall right-hander of the St. Louis Cardinals was within an inch of being knocked out of the box by American League batters for the fifth consecutive time.

It happened in the dramatic ninth inning of yesterday's second game. Big Mort, bearing up manfully under the grief of his father's unexpected death, was sailing along on a four-hit job and a three-run lead as the Yanks came up for their last bat.

The huge crowd, strangely silent a minute before, came to life with a roar as rookie Bill Johnson doubled to left center. Then "King Kong" Charley Keller clouted a mighty 457-foot triple to left center.

With one run in and the ever dangerous Bill Dickey, Nick Etten and Joe Gordon coming up, Cooper seemed shaken. Manager Billy Southworth and the Card infield gathered around him for a confab.

Dickey followed with a screaming line drive—right into the hands of second baseman Lou Klein. An inch either way would have meant a hit for Dickey—perhaps a double—with Southworth regretfully forced to lift Big Mort. As it was, Cooper breezed by Etten and Gordon only four pitches to end the game.

Rookie outfielder Bud Metheny of the Yanks, playing in his first series game, made a great try to catch Ray Sanders' drive that went for a two-run homer in the fourth inning. He was stunned momentarily after landing on the base of his spine in falling against the low right field barrier but reported he felt no after effects.

As a matter of fact Sanders thought Metheny had caught the ball. "When I saw him go up for it, I thought he had it. Fortunately for me it was a fraction too high for him."

Frankie Crosetti is one of those fellows you never notice very much out there, no matter what he does. It's his seventh world series, but in all of them you might just go down the lineup and see his name and figure somebody had to be in there to make the list total nine.

But the slim, wiry Yankee veteran has a nuisance value which both his teammates and the Cardinals appreciate. Particularly the Cardinals. In his unobtrusive way he has been in their hair all through the first two games of the current classic.

He's scored three of the Yankees' seven runs, got three hits, such as they were, stolen a base and taken advantage of two Cardinal misplays to get around the bases.

Yesterday, in the fourth inning, he tried to bunt, and imagine his surprise when the ball looped over the incoming first-baseman's head for a single. He was pushed around a base at a time, until he finally scored on Charley Keller's fly ball.

WORLD SERIES
South Pacific Headquarters, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Those caps the New York Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals are wearing in the world series may be traded for Japanese Zero planes—and quickly. At least, the caps of the winning team may be.

Such baseball caps are popular headgear in the tropics because they keep the sun out of the fliers' eyes. But they are scarce. So today, Major Gregory Boyington, a South Pacific ace with 15 planes to his credit, said his Marine fighter squadron has an offer to make. It is willing to shoot down a Japanese Zero in trade for each cap of the winning team.

Buckeyes and Great Lakes Should Stage Feature Saturday

One of Several "Big" Games on Week-End Grid Calendar

Chicago, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The Notre Dame-Michigan clash certainly rates top billing in Saturday's football show. But lest we forget, there are a few other games which merit some attention.

Among them is the encounter between coach Paul Brown's young squad of civilians representing Ohio State, and the unbeaten but potentially powerful Great Lakes Bluejackets.

Sparked by halfback Steve Lach, late of Duke and the Chicago Cardinals, the Sailors have been traveling at a merry clip the last two weeks, whipping Iowa 21 to 7 and Pittsburgh 40 to 0.

The Buckeyes, in dropping their opener to the Iowa Seahawks and trouncing Missouri 27 to 6 last week, have proved somewhat of a surprise. A month ago most fans held little hope for the youthful, inexperienced Bucks. Without a Navy program, State—Western Conference champion last year—had to build its team around freshmen and any other non-service boys who might stray into its grid camp.

Coach Brown has done well with the material at hand. He came up with a complete freshman backfield starring Ernie Parks and Dean Sensenbaurer. Parks, 17-year-old Negro from Canton, O., ran wild against Missouri, scoring three touchdowns and gaining 207 yards in 27 attempts.

Sensenbaurer Looks Good
Sensenbaurer tallied once and gained 152 yards. Against the strong Iowa Seahawks he ripped off a 27 yard touchdown gallop and generally conducted himself as though he belonged in the big time. Though losing 28 to 13 the Buckeyes gave the Hawks a run for their money, registering 12 first downs to 10 and nearly equalling the Hawks' total yardage gained.

As against these feats, Lieut. Tony Hinkle, Great Lakes coach, proudly presents Lach and associates, many of them ex-college stars. Lach scored twice against Pitt the first two times he handled the ball—once on a run of 85 yards. In the Iowa game he scrambled 76 yards the second time he got the ball.

Since joining the team after it had defeated Port Riley and lost to Purdue, Lach in 14 ball carrying efforts has gained 208 yards for an average of 14.8 yards a try.

It would seem the Buckeyes' victory chances would be much improved if they could prevent that Sailor from getting his hands on the ball.

From Other Camps
Notes from other midwest football camps:

Illinois worked on its T offense against Wisconsin defensive formations as coach Ray Eliot announced that halfback Bill Krall would be ready to start Saturday. He's been out with injuries since the Purdue game. At Camp Grant coach Charley Bachman sent his Warriors through a long passing drill in preparation for Purdue.

The Boilermakers meanwhile were striving to overcome their fumbling tendencies which cropped up against Illinois. Coach Harry Hildreth at fullback and Doug Hodges at quarterback, to start the Illinois contest.

At Bloomington, coach Bo McMillin of Indiana worked the Hoosiers on a passing attack and also stressed defensive play for Nebraska's T formation. The University of Iowa Hawkeyes spent their practice session scrimmaging as coach Slip Madigan sought ways and means of stopping the Seahawks. The latter continued their secret sessions.

Coach Tom Stidham of Marquette announced he would start freshman Frank Aschenbrenner at right halfback against Lawrence Saturday night. Northwestern's Otto Graham tried to regain his old passing proficiency which has been absent of late. At Minneapolis Dr. George Hauser applied himself to the problem of building up Gopher reserve strength.

Michigan worked on a defense against Angelo Bertelli's passes while at South Bend Bertelli devoted considerable time to punting. Coach Frank Leahy of Notre Dame announced Capt. Pat Filley, guard who has been out with injuries, would be available for Michigan.

Meat Important So Make Good Use of Your Allowances

While there is a somewhat wider choice range in most meat markets today than a month or two ago, there isn't enough variety to satisfy all shoppers. Keeping menu plans flexible so that they can be changed at the meat counter if necessary is a good solution to the problem of satisfying family appetites and keeping dispositions in line, according to Frances E. Cook, food specialist, University of Illinois college of agriculture.

Any cut of meat is a rich source of good quality protein, has valuable B vitamins and contains essential iron, copper and phosphorus. It is important, however, to know point-ratation arithmetic, ceiling prices and how to prepare the various cuts so that they will be fine-tasting and attractive to the eye when you send them to the table.

Reasonable Recipe
This recipe is one that you'll find reasonable in points as well as price, and yet has plenty of appetite appeal when correctly prepared. Vary the seasoning to suit family tastes and serve it piping hot with an attractive garnish.

Ragout of Beef
2 pounds lean raw beef
Salt and pepper
Flour
Fat for browning
1 onion, chopped
1 green pepper
1 cup chopped celery and leaves
2 tablespoons minced parsley
Paprika
Cut the beef in inch cubes and sprinkle with salt, pepper and flour. Brown well in two or three tablespoons of fat, and while browning add the onion, green pepper, celery and parsley. Sprinkle with paprika, add water to cover, put lid on utensil and cook slowly until the meat is tender. If you prefer a creamy or thick stew, thicken the liquid by mixing 1 to 2 tablespoons of flour to a smooth paste with a small amount of cold water. Add several spoonfuls of the stew to the paste, then stir the mixture into the rest of the stew and simmer until smooth and thickened. Season to taste with salt and pepper, adding tomato catsup, chili sauce or grated horseradish, if desired.

Fair Enough by WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York.—If any of you are overburdened with worry these days, it might interest you to know that same can be attended to promptly and neatly by a professional of long experience, meaning me. I have been in this business for about 10 years and my many contented clients have sent me very complimentary testimonials, which may be seen by appointment. No worry is too insignificant for my attention nor large enough to daunt me, and my range of topics has included the future of the Tunney-Muldoon trophy symbolic of the heavy-weight championship of the world, the fairest gem in fistiana's bauble, as the late Leo P. Flynn used to call it, and the security of Singapore. The last time I saw the gem in the bauble, it had been shoved back in a corner under the stairs in Madison Square Garden and I needn't tell you what happened to Singapore. I think I should explain that I do not guarantee favorable results. I just worry and the results just happen independently.

At the present moment I have many orders on hand from clients desiring me to worry over the impending coal shortage for them and I may say that, as is my custom in servicing multiple orders, I put them in a hamper and do them in a batch. It is a system not unlike that of a little boy of my acquaintance who prays specifically and by name for his parents and other members of the family, but blankets the rest of his fellowmen in a general petition. I believe the coal shortage is going to be very severe and I am really going to town on this issue, and it seems a shame that, with the case in the hands of an expert, others should waste their energies on it. They might just mess it around.

I have found in my long experience that it is possible to worry very fast and in the course of a very few minutes when I am having a real good day, I can polish off our future relations with Russia, the menace of Communism in Canada, the new income tax proposals of Mr. Morgenthau, the indecency of the Wagner act and the postwar world.

I started with little bits of worries, such as flunking long division, and whether my old man would be canned in the annual pre-Christmas massacre when he was a reporter in Chicago. I have flunked the long division several times and do such problems nowadays strictly with matchsticks, but my dad never was canned, so you see, while some worry is justified, much of it is sheer waste. I guess it is something like farming. You can't tell what the crop is going to be but you have to keep on trying.

Because I am an entrepreneur, as they used to call the proprietor of a peanut stand or lunch wagon back in the days of the NRA, I am able to worry long hours without interference from any government department. On a 40-hour week, I would soon be swamped with business and a very helpful service to the public would be badly obstructed. My system is to start worrying as soon as I wake up, usually about some carry-over problems from the day before, either personal or public. I next take a look at the papers and pretty soon the mail arrives, a hundred or more letters in a batch, and I then spit on my hands and really get going. My clients lately have sent me many orders for worry on the subject of a manpower shortage at a time when the union racketeers are overmanning many jobs, and wasting men, mostly dummies to be sure, on mock work; and let me say that my performance on this one has been uncommonly fast, thorough and polished but there have been so many repeat orders that I have had to attend to them in several huge batches.

A friend of mine, an amateur, tells me that he sets aside one hour every evening for worry but, while he is very earnest, he is after all an amateur and something of a plodder at that and I have known him to put in a whole week's worrying time on nothing but the soundness of his insurance policy. Such individual worry is very wasteful, as you can see, when I am at your service to worry about the whole great problem of insurance in connection with inflation and estate taxes. I worry standing up, sitting down or walking and while I do not like to boast, I may say that I bar no topic. Just phone, write or wire and state your worry.

PRISONERS BUILD SHAFTS

Melbourne, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The Japanese are putting Australian war prisoners to work building victory monuments 288 feet high near the Ford factory on Singapore island. This came to light today in a letter from a native Indian Army officer, Capt. G. S. Parab Singh, who recently escaped from Malaya to India.

FLIGHT ADVOCATED

Stockholm, Oct. 7.—(AP)—German soldiers, expressing disapproval of the Nazi persecution of Danish Jews, have been assisting them to escape to Sweden, according to statements made by refugees to the Swedish press today. The refugees said German soldiers in some instances had changed into civilian clothes in order to help the Jews without drawing attention to themselves.

Late Potato Crop Shows an Increase; Serve Them Often

White Spuds Hold Spotlight in Preparing Menus Now

Our war food picture changes rapidly these days and part of every homemaker's job is to be on the alert for information and ready to adjust her marketing and menu planning to meet the changing food situation, says Miss Frances E. Cook, home economist, University of Illinois College of Agriculture. At the moment white potatoes hold the spotlight.

Farmers increased their potato acreage this year at the request of the War Food Administration in order to make the supply adequate to meet wartime nutrition needs. Now it is up to homemakers to keep up their part of the good work by purchasing them in quantity—as storage space will allow—and giving them a prominent place in regular menu plans.

Potatoes pack plenty of nutrients, including the much needed vitamin C. They are high in calories, contain calcium, protein, phosphorus, iron, thiamine, riboflavin and vitamin A, and they keep their treasure if cooked correctly.

One of the best ways to prepare them, and the easiest, is to boil them with their jackets, for the highest percentage of minerals is concentrated close to the skin. Don't soak them before cooking. Scrub them well, drop them into a kettle of boiling salted water—enough to barely cover the potatoes. Cook until tender, drain at once so that they won't get waterlogged and serve them in their jackets; or peel them, season with salt, pepper, a bit of bacon fat and sprinkle with minced parsley.

Tried Recipes

Here are tried-and-true recipes that your family will enjoy and that are easy to adapt to menu plans for either lunch or dinner. Season to taste and serve them promptly.

Potato Pancakes.
2 cups grated raw potatoes
1/4 cup milk
1 egg
2 tablespoons flour
Salt and pepper
Chopped onion.

Put the grated potatoes immediately in the milk to help keep them from turning dark. Drain the milk from the potatoes. And the well-beaten egg to the potatoes—then the flour, and just enough of the milk that was drained off to make a stiff batter. Season with salt, pepper and chopped onion. Drop by large spoonfuls into a well-greased frying pan. Cook the pancakes until well-browned and crisp. Serve at once.

Potato Hot Pot
1 quart sliced raw potatoes
1 onion, sliced

Ration Book Four Will Be Put Out Last of October

Urbana, Ill.—War Ration Book Four, which will last approximately two years, will be issued to more than 120,000,000 persons through schoolhouse distributions between October 20 and October 30, according to an announcement just received from the Office of Price Administration, says Mrs. Kathryn VanAken Burns, state leader, University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

Schools have been called on again to distribute the ration book because there was not enough time between completion of mailing Book Three and the date when Book Four will be used to organize the necessary facilities to handle applications by mail. Their ability to do the job quickly and efficiently and their willingness to undertake the tremendous responsibility involved in distribution of the ration

4 tablespoons fat
3 cups tomatoes
2 teaspoons salt
Pepper.

Cook the potatoes and onion in the fat for 10 minutes. And the tomatoes, salt and pepper. Cover and simmer for 30 minutes, or until the potatoes are tender and the tomato juice is thickened by the starchy potatoes.

books, have been proved in the past.

Up to this time it has been necessary to issue a new ration book every four or five months. It costs approximately $1,500,000 to print and distribute each series of books. By planning Book Four so that it will last 96 weeks, there will be a great saving in money, material and labor.

War Ration Book Four contains six pages of "point" stamps, 48 stamps on a page. There are 96 point stamps in each color, red, blue and green. The book also contains two pages of numbered "unit" stamps printed in black ink. There are 72 "spares," 12 "sugar" stamps and 12 stamps designated for "coffee," which is no longer on the list of rationed foods. This strip of 12 coupons will probably be used as spare stamps.

Homemakers Asked to Help Stretch Container Supply

Returning empty wooden containers to dealers is another one of the "little things" that add up to importance when homemakers, several million strong, unite in doing it, says Mrs. Madge Little, home economist, University of Illinois college of agriculture. Wood is now an essential war material and ranks with aluminum, copper and steel, and there is a shortage of wooden containers.

Soft pine and other lumber ordinarily used in fruit boxes is in demand for packing ammunition, guns, airplanes, hospital supplies, and food for soldiers overseas. Some of the yellow poplar veneer used for tomato baskets is needed for aircraft construction. In addition to these new war uses, the requirement for boxing lumber for agricultural products is almost double that of last year, and men are not available to cut the extra timber needed.

700 Million Required

Approximately 700,000,000 new containers are normally required to pack the annual production of fresh fruits and vegetables, but it is estimated that only about 50,000,000 of this number make more than one trip to market. This year the War Food Administration is asking that homemakers help in keeping them traveling from field or market to kitchen and back again.

When you buy fruit or vegetables in bulk take good care of the crates and baskets and return them to the dealer from whom the purchases were made. Wooden boxes used for potatoes, sweet potatoes and apples should also be returned. Even small baskets used for grapes, plums and Brussels sprouts are worth salvaging. No usable container should be destroyed or withheld from circulation.

You can help, too, by not requesting delivery of your grocery purchases in wooden fruit crates, vegetable hampers or baskets. Paste-board or fiber boxes will serve the purpose just as well. Keep in mind, too, that a used container in which fruit or vegetables is displayed is no reflection on the quality of the merchandise. In fact, it is visible evidence of a patriotic grocer's participation in the container salvage campaign.

—Brides-to-be should supply themselves with monogram stationery, note heads, formal and thank-you cards. See our beautiful samples.—B. F. Shaw Printing Company.

Make Some Tomato Surplus Into New and Tasty Sauce

If jars are becoming scarce or at least down to the number that requires careful planning, why not can a concentrated tomato sauce instead of canning so much water in plain canned tomatoes or tomato juice, suggests Miss Lulu Black, associate in home economics extension, University of Illinois college of agriculture. Tomato sauce will be convenient next winter when you rush in some late afternoon and must prepare a meal in a short time.

This sauce, or a similar one flavored to your own taste, can be used with baked beans, spaghetti, meat balls, as a creole sauce base, or on sea food with the addition to French or mayonnaise dressing for salads.

Cook one peck of tomatoes until soft enough to put through a sieve. Turn into the sieve and drain. To the colorless juice add about 8 bay leaves and 1/2 cup celery seed tied in a bag. Fresh celery could be used if celery seed is difficult to obtain. Boil the juice briskly until one-fourth of the juice is left. Put the tomato pulp through the sieve and simmer, stirring occasionally. Add the tomato juice to the tomato pulp with 1/4 cup of onion juice, extracted in the same way with pepper. Cook to consistency desired, stirring frequently. Put into hot jars and process in water bath for 15 minutes. The separate cooking saves the red color of the tomato.

Hollywood News

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
NEA Staff Correspondent

When ace scenarist Norman Krasna sold a film story titled "Practically Yours" to Paramount studio the other day, the big bosses asked if he had any preference about who should produce the picture.

Krasna said he did. "Let that real estate man produce it," he said.

The big bosses, puzzled, asked for an explanation. Krasna explained and Harry Tugend got the job.

After 15 years, the newspaper office boy and the real estate man had gotten together in Hollywood.

It's quite a story.

Fifteen years ago Harry Tugend was a New York real estate man who went to Europe on his honeymoon. One day in Paris he wrote a letter to a friend on the old New York World. It was an amusing letter and the friend passed it around the editorial room for all to read.

The office boy, Norman Krasna, read the letter and was impressed. He dropped Tugend a note saying: "Some people in the newspaper business should be in the real estate business, and vice versa."

Tugend was also impressed. Even if the compliment did come from an office boy. For years he had a secret ambition to write.

But he was always too busy selling real estate.

When he returned to New York from his honeymoon, he looked up his office boy admirer and they became good friends. Later, when Krasna quit a job on a Broadway theatrical trade paper to become a Hollywood press agent, he talked the editor into hiring the real estate man.

Change of Careers

So the real estate man became a Broadway theatrical reporter and the newspaper office boy went to Hollywood as a press agent.

While writing reviews and Broadway chit-chat Tugend started contributing gags to the New Yorker, writing blackouts for new shows and revues. The star of one of the revues was Fred Allen, who liked his material and hired him to help write a radio program he was just starting.

For five years the former real estate man helped Allen write his radio show and become one of the nation's favorite comedians.

Meanwhile, in Hollywood, the former office boy became one of the screen's foremost scenarists. Five years ago Fred Allen came to Hollywood to make his screen debut. Harry Tugend came with him to help write his material, and remained to also become one of the screen's top scenarists. The ex-real estate man and the ex-office boy renewed their friendship. But although now in the same business, they never worked together.

Then Paramount Studio gave Tugend a writer-producer contract. And Krasna became a captain in the Army, sold Paramount a story about the return of a soldier hero, "Practically Yours," and said, "Let that real estate man produce it."

Success Story

How Harry Tugend became a scenarist, after selling real estate and writing comedy for Fred Allen, is another story. And just as good.

"I was working at 20th Century-Fox with Fred," he said, "when the studio decided I was just the man to write a Shirley Temple picture. I talked it over with Allen, and although he never could understand the similarity between himself and Shirley, he agreed to my remaining in Hollywood."

Washington

By James Thrasher
Telegraph Special Service

A clash of musical and bureaucratic temperament broke out here the other night between a noted European opera and orchestra conductor, who comes to Washington weekly to rehearse a government workers' symphony orchestra, and his brother, the orchestra's founder and manager and a government employee himself.

An awed and innocent bystander was a young woman who had volunteered her services as assistant manager. She stood about uncomfortably as the argument, which began after rehearsal, continued on into the night.

Finally the verbal barrage approached its climax with the conductor declaring, "Very well, I shall have nothing more to do with this organization."

"YOU will have nothing more to do with this organization?" his brother repeated, with towering scorn. "It is I who will have nothing more to do with it!"

By this time the assistant manager had caught the spirit of the thing, and turned on a little temperment herself.

"All right," she said, "if that's the way it's going to be, I certainly shall have nothing more to do with it. Here is the key to your rehearsal room."

And with a grand gesture she flung the key on the table and flounced out.

The young woman was pretty well satisfied with her dramatic exit until she discovered, on reaching home, that she had thrown the warring brothers the key to her apartment.

At 2:30 a. m. she meekly pecked at the bedroom window of a girl friend and asked shelter for the night.

CORNY CURE
Homesickness manifests itself in queer ways, but probably none queerer than the nostalgia for radio commercials which, a few weeks ago, broke out in epidemic proportions among American soldiers in the North African area.

An officer just returned from that theater reports that soldier fan mail to the Red, White and Blue network (stations in Casablanca, Oran, Algiers, Constantine, Tunis and Palermo) complained that, while the request record programs were all right, listeners did miss the saccharine persuasion of announcers selling the sponsor's product.

Capt. Andre Baruch, who was a top radio man before entering the service, was glad to oblige. Now the boys are treated to parodies on authentic commercials, like the one selling Spam.

"Does your mess sergeant give you enough Spam?" the announcer begins. (That may not seem funny to you, but it is to the soldier overseas, where Spam is as prevalent as corn-willy was in the last war.) "If he is unable to supply you," the commercial continues, "drop in at our store, 120 Fifth Avenue, New York, and we will be happy to provide you with a can of Spam, absolutely free of charge."

And then there is the "Ataburp Hour," a slightly twisted plug for atabrine, the synthetic quinine substitute which apparently is no more palatable than the original.

"This is Ataburp Hour," a melodious voice begins. "Ataburp, spelled A-t-a-burp!—(with authentic sound effects). Do your feet swell after a 20-mile hike? Do you see spots before your eyes? Does your first sergeant irritate you? What you need is ataburp."

"Take one of the yellow tablets, grasp it between your thumb and forefinger, open your mouth wide and toss the tablet far back in your throat. (A gong rings.) And then—and then you . . . (There is a blood-curdling scream, followed by a recording of the London air raid sirens.)

Corny?—sure. But the soldiers like it. And it isn't much cornier than the serious domestic variety, at that.

PRODUCTION RECORD
The Congressional Directory's biography of the venerable Sen. Hiram Warren Johnson includes this rather startling phrase: "Was married in the city of Sacramento to Minnie McNeal, daughter of Archibald McNeal, and of this marriage there were two sons, both adults."

Federal - Illinois Plans Completed for School Lunch

Representatives of the Illinois state department of public instruction and the Food Distribution Administration of the federal government have completed arrangements whereby a coordinated federal-state school lunch program is now available to eligible schools in the state, according to Miss Grace Armstrong, nutritionist, University of Illinois college of agriculture.

Under the combined program, the federal government will reimburse school participating in the community school lunch program on the basis of types of lunches served, and the quantities of designated foods used by the sponsoring group. Federal funds are to be administered by the Food Distribution Administration.

Through legislation passed at the recent session of the legislature, the state of Illinois provides for a supplemental payment to the schools which receive reimbursement from the federal government, in those instances where the cost of the food is in excess of the amounts for which the federal government will reimburse. State funds are to be administered by the state department of public instruction.

County superintendents are to serve as sponsors for the program in all schools included in the project in their area. Local co-sponsors may be either school departments, systems or boards; child welfare centers, or service organizations, such as parent-teacher groups, mothers' clubs, American Legion, Rotary clubs, etc. However, whenever possible, local sponsors should be educational bodies or school officials. Local sponsoring agencies will be required to execute operating agreements with the county superintendent of schools whereby they assume responsibilities for the operation of the program in the school sponsored by them.

Any public, religious or private school not operated for profit may be considered for the project provided it is of high school grade or under. Community centers, settlement houses, child day care centers and the like which are not operated for profit, may also be considered eligible.

Although this community school lunch program is not limited by law to low-income children or to low-income schools, it is obviously desirable to provide assistance where the greatest need exists.

Our Boarding House With Major Hoople Out Our Way By Williams

TODAY on the HOME FRONT

by JAMES MARLOW and GEORGE ZIELKE

(Editor's Note: This is the first of three stories on the report of the senate's Kilgore committee which found in some cases almost chaotic misuse of allied shipping facilities.)

Washington, Oct. 7—(AP)—Concentrating shipping in the Atlantic for the war against Hitler is three times as effective as in the Pacific war, the Kilgore senate sub-committee said today in a report recommending drastic reorganization in this country's handling of its merchant fleet.

Through such concentration, said the report, "three times as many troops can be transported, three times the volume of munitions can be carried to batter down the powerful enemy".

Sternly critical of the way in which some United States ship and port facilities have been used and unused, the report of the sub-committee headed by Senator Kilgore (W. Va.) said:

"If plans are executed to pack every ship to the last pound and to the last cubic foot, our shipping can deliver the decisive blow in Europe this year".

The report, made to the senate military affairs committee, recommended:

That administration of all cargo shipping should be centralized in the War Shipping Administration with direct control and organization of ships engaged in transport of combat forces remaining in the hands of the military services.

The United States has 16 million deadweight tons of dry cargo merchant ships—this is exclusive of tankers and other auxiliary vessels—and this is the way the report said they are being used now under divided authority: Two million administered directly by the Army and Navy; another 7 million operated by the Army and Navy under allocation by the War Shipping Administration; and the remaining 7 million tons, devoted to lend-lease and commercial shipments, is controlled by the War Shipping Administration.

Thus, the report said, "we have two separate merchant fleets, each operating independently of the other. The result of divided responsibility is a failure to utilize our shipping resources."

"Trained technical personnel is duplicated. There is competition for water-front harbor facilities where there should be planned allocation. Moreover, divided responsibility between military and civilian administration prevents that proper balancing and blending of cargoes which is so essential for maximum utilization of our cargo capacity".

There were two additional recommendations:

1. To plan ship allocation, a shipping allocations committee should be established in the War Shipping Administration with representatives from the various involved agencies.
2. The present combined shiping adjustment board should be expanded to include all allied powers because "inter-allied cooperation in shipping is an integral part of the planning and execution of all-out offensive warfare".

FROM MRS. SMYTH

Dixon, Ill., Oct. 6—I see by the paper that Dr. Barakoff does not agree with me that the dump on Third street is a menace to the health and safety of the public. Well I don't know much about the safety part as I am not so afraid of being injured here only some times the way the trucks come down here so fast I feel that I am in danger of being buried alive also my house may catch fire, as everyone knows that there is a fire hazard here.

Any doctor knows full well that bears on one's mind continually to the health and happiness of the ones who suffer from this unlawful nuisance.

I also have reports that Dr. Werren, city health officer, said that my place looks worse than the dump. Now I am willing to admit that my yard doesn't look good. But I have hopes of making a flower garden here if Mr. Smyth and I live a few more years.

As we have only owned this property two years any one knows that it is a big job to transform an unimproved place such as this into a beauty spot also my house may catch fire, as everyone knows that there is a fire hazard here. I wanted it.

Well getting back to the nuisance part of it. These 40 people who signed the petition can't be wrong on this subject and one man right who lives 8 miles from here and who never has occasion to visit this part of the city. After all the majority rules in this country.

I have also had other people come to me and say they wanted to put their names on that paper, too, so I had to tell them that I was very sorry but the complaint had already been filed with the city council. I also wish to repeat that the dump is inside the city.

While there is another dump a short distance west one-half block outside the city which is worse as they dump garbage, dead animals and spoiled meat, in fact anything into there.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin have their home up on the bank of that dump and these aged people are compelled to suffer from this terrible odor all through the warm weather.

The law says that the city has jurisdiction within one mile of the city limits.

Last but not least I'll bet that if these nuisances were next door to either one of these doctors they would have did some tall hallowing long before I ever made a peep.

I surely do appreciate the co-operation the members of the council have promised me while I am waiting for action.
